

BRANCH MEETING
KINGS COLLEGE LONDON, STRAND CAMPUS
Wednesday 1st February 2017 - 7.30pm

FILMING FRESHWATER FISH

Jack Perks
Jack Perks Wildlife Media

Jack Perks, the renowned natural history photographer, has spent the last 4 years trying to film every species of British freshwater fish. So far he has filmed 49 of the 56 species. His work has appeared on Springwatch, Countryfile and Mr Crabtree Goes Fishing multiple times. This has led to him developing techniques and strategies from scuba diving in rivers to remote cameras.

This talk shows off Jack's outstanding underwater videos and stills, including a range of weird and wonderful species and showcasing behaviour rarely seen. He'll talk about his experiences in the field and how filming fish can unravel a hidden world

oooooOOOooooooo

The talk will be held in the Pyramid Room, Department of Geography, King's Building, King's College London, Strand WC2R 2LS (see map).

Drinks and Nibbles from 7:00pm
